

WellCycle announces strategic alliance with Project InVision International

Alliance will deliver software solutions to the oil and gas industry

NOVATO, California, US – October 31, 2011

WellCycle, a provider of performance improvement solutions to the oil and gas industry, and Project InVision International, a leading on demand software platform, today announced a strategic alliance to deliver software solutions to the oil and gas industry.

Under the terms of the agreement, WellCycle will become an independent software vendor (ISV) for Project InVision, delivering software solutions and valued added services tailored to the oil and gas industry.

Project InVision provides a platform for professional services firms and other service delivery organizations to adapt and deliver specialized portfolio and lifecycle management solutions. These solutions help companies to automate repeatable processes, increase efficiency, and promote collaboration.

“By combining the industry expertise of WellCycle with the advanced capabilities of the Project InVision software platform, the alliance will accelerate the availability of software solutions for the oil and gas industry,” stated Matthew Meblin, co-founder of WellCycle.
